

ACM Inspire

ACM Inspire, an initiative led by tutor Ben Scott, has been a cross-campus success and a demonstration of talent and teamwork.

Guildford

As part of the Guildford session, tutors Ben Scott, Paul Ressel, and Shea Stedford worked with three London students to produce a new original EP. The students fully ran the session, engineering the studio, mic-ing up the drums, and ensuring the tutors could conduct a live performance and recording that will ultimately manifest as a brand new EP for a library music pitch we have upcoming.

Birmingham

Nikki Sadler also conducted an ACM Inspire session in Birmingham. Nikki recorded an original EP of her own artistic material with help from Birmingham tutor Justin Lyndley. Students ran the session and contributed tremendously - see a taster of what went on here

Josh Wunderlich ran a J-Pop writing camp over Reading Week as part of ACM Inspire, where students could write alongside Josh for a real-world pitch for a J-Pop artist.
